Spirituality for This Age

Srimad Bhagavatam 1.2.8 states:

dharmah svanusthitah pumsam, visvaksena-kathasu yah; notpadayed yadi ratim, srama eva hi kevalam.

"Without falling (notpadayed) in love (ratim) with the spiritual world by constant (nirantar) and humble (namantyam) hearing (kathasu), every occupational or bodily (svanusthitah) duty (dharmah) you (pumsam) do is certainly (eva) and simply (kevalam) useless labor (srama)."

How Your Work Enhances Spiritual Hearing

And vice versa is also true. If you are feeling the love (rati) for the spiritual world by hearing the sounds descending from the spiritual world, then whatever work and menial service you do while hearing will make you more humble and enlightened, thus awakening even more love in your hearing practice.

The Science of One and Zero

First, put the 1 (spiritual hearing) before all the zeroes (work) at all times, and every additional zero (talent) you add will only increase your value more and more infinitely.

But without 1 (spiritual hearing) in the front, the value still remains 0 even if you have a millions zeroes (talents).

The Hearing Checklist

There is a checklist of two things to make this work for sure.

(1) The sounds which you are hearing should have been recorded by someone who is immersed in the divine visions of the spiritual world of Sri Ekachakra, specifically while he or she is recording them. It does not matter if these recorded sounds are melodious or sweet to hear or not; that is only the outer skin, the real inner spiritual substance of remembrance should be there.

"So we should associate by vibration, and not by the physical presence. That is real association." (SP 8/18/1968)

(2) We have to gradually learn the art of and become experts in staying physically active by humbly serving and working for ourselves and others. But while doing it, we should also simultaneously listen to realized sounds in the background, in order to keep our inner consciousness always in the spiritual world even while we are working or doing other things, not just while practicing our dedicated hearing meditation daily.
