

Time is Money

Srila Bhaktiratna Sadhu (bhaktiratna.org)

A company pays you only for the time you work for it, right? In the same way, God also rewards your soul with entry into His spiritual world only in proportion to the time you spent daily thinking of Him and His spiritual world, without fail.

Conquering time means to utilize each and every second of our life for thinking of the spiritual world, where we want to go after death. Believe it or not, this is our only true long-term benefit.

Lost time can never be recovered again for all eternity. The Vedas state that the precious time lost without thinking of the spiritual world in this rarest human form of life, the only species which possesses the intelligence to think of God, is the greatest harm to our soul in the whole existence in the past, present and future, which we can never recuperate from.

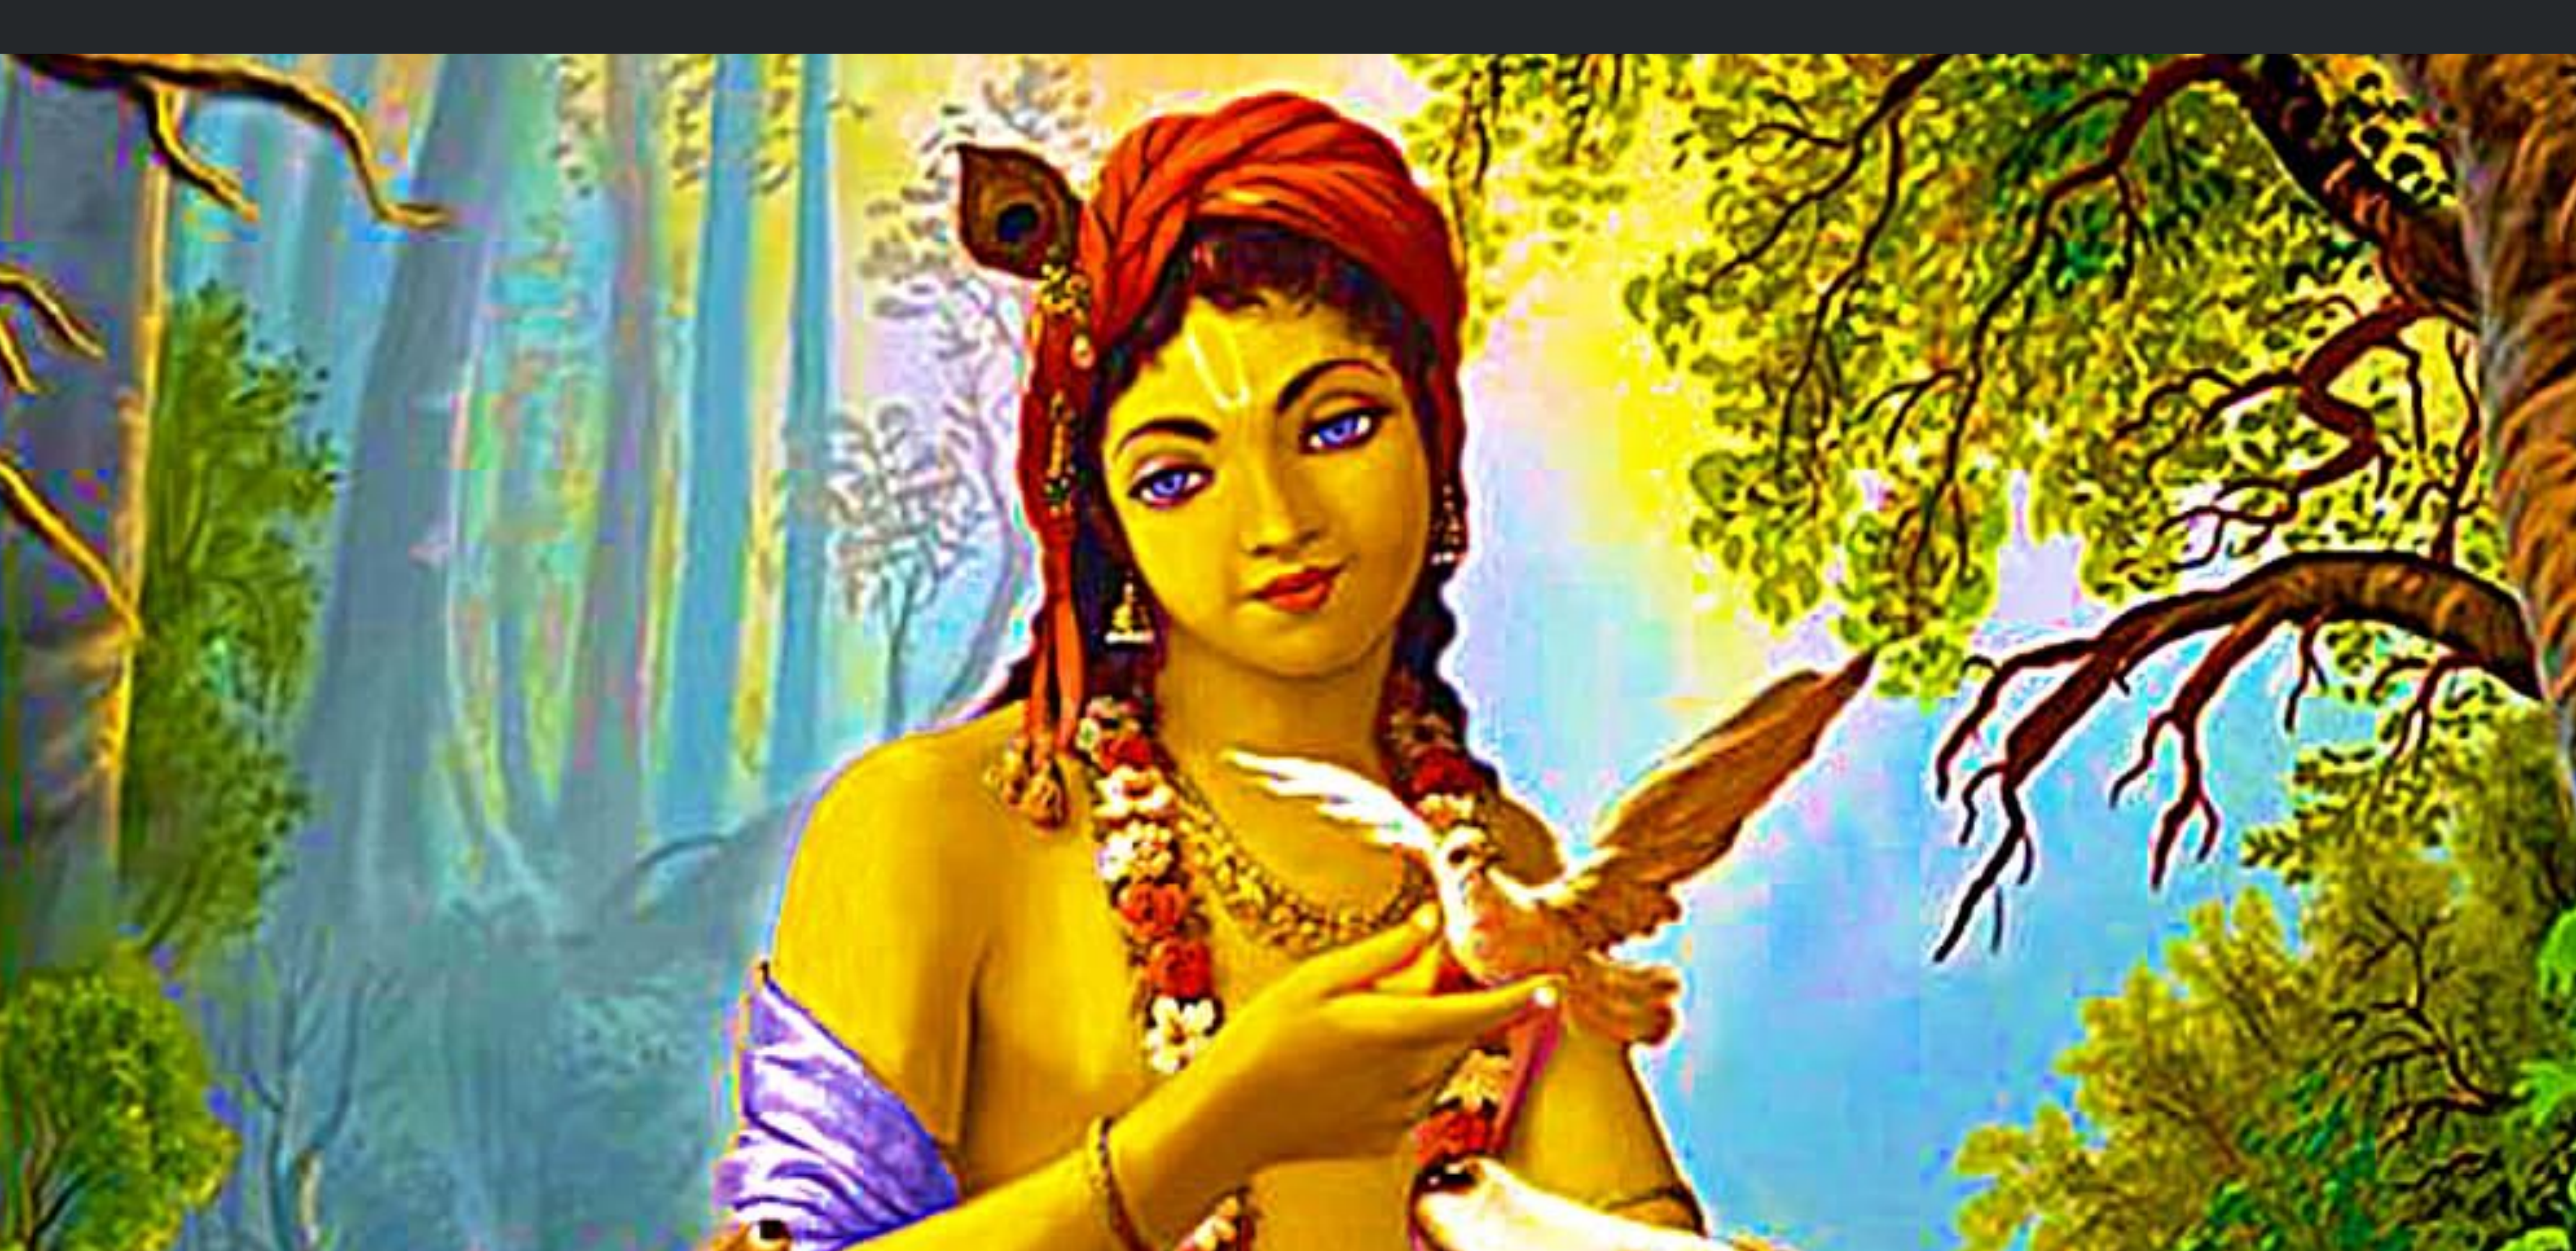

So, just speak, sit, walk, work, etc. only if doing so reminds you of the spiritual world constantly and you don't forget it.

You may ask how can I give up all work?

You don't have to. You can think of the spiritual world even while working, simply by listening to the sounds which are descending from the spiritual world.

By the way, aren't you working, eating, and doing all practical things to sustain your present physical bodies?

Do you ever stop and think that your body can perish at the drop of the hat at any moment? And all your hard work will be wasted. All your dreams will end.

You ask, "So what you are saying is everything what I am doing right now to earn money, maintain my body, love my family, etc. is a colossal waste of time?"

To put it bluntly, it is, yes! As a spiritual monk, it is my bitter duty to warn you that it is all useless for your soul, before you actually end up experiencing the reactions for wasting your time without thinking of God, in the form of endless suffering after death in the 8.4 million species of life, 28 hells & ghostly bodies.

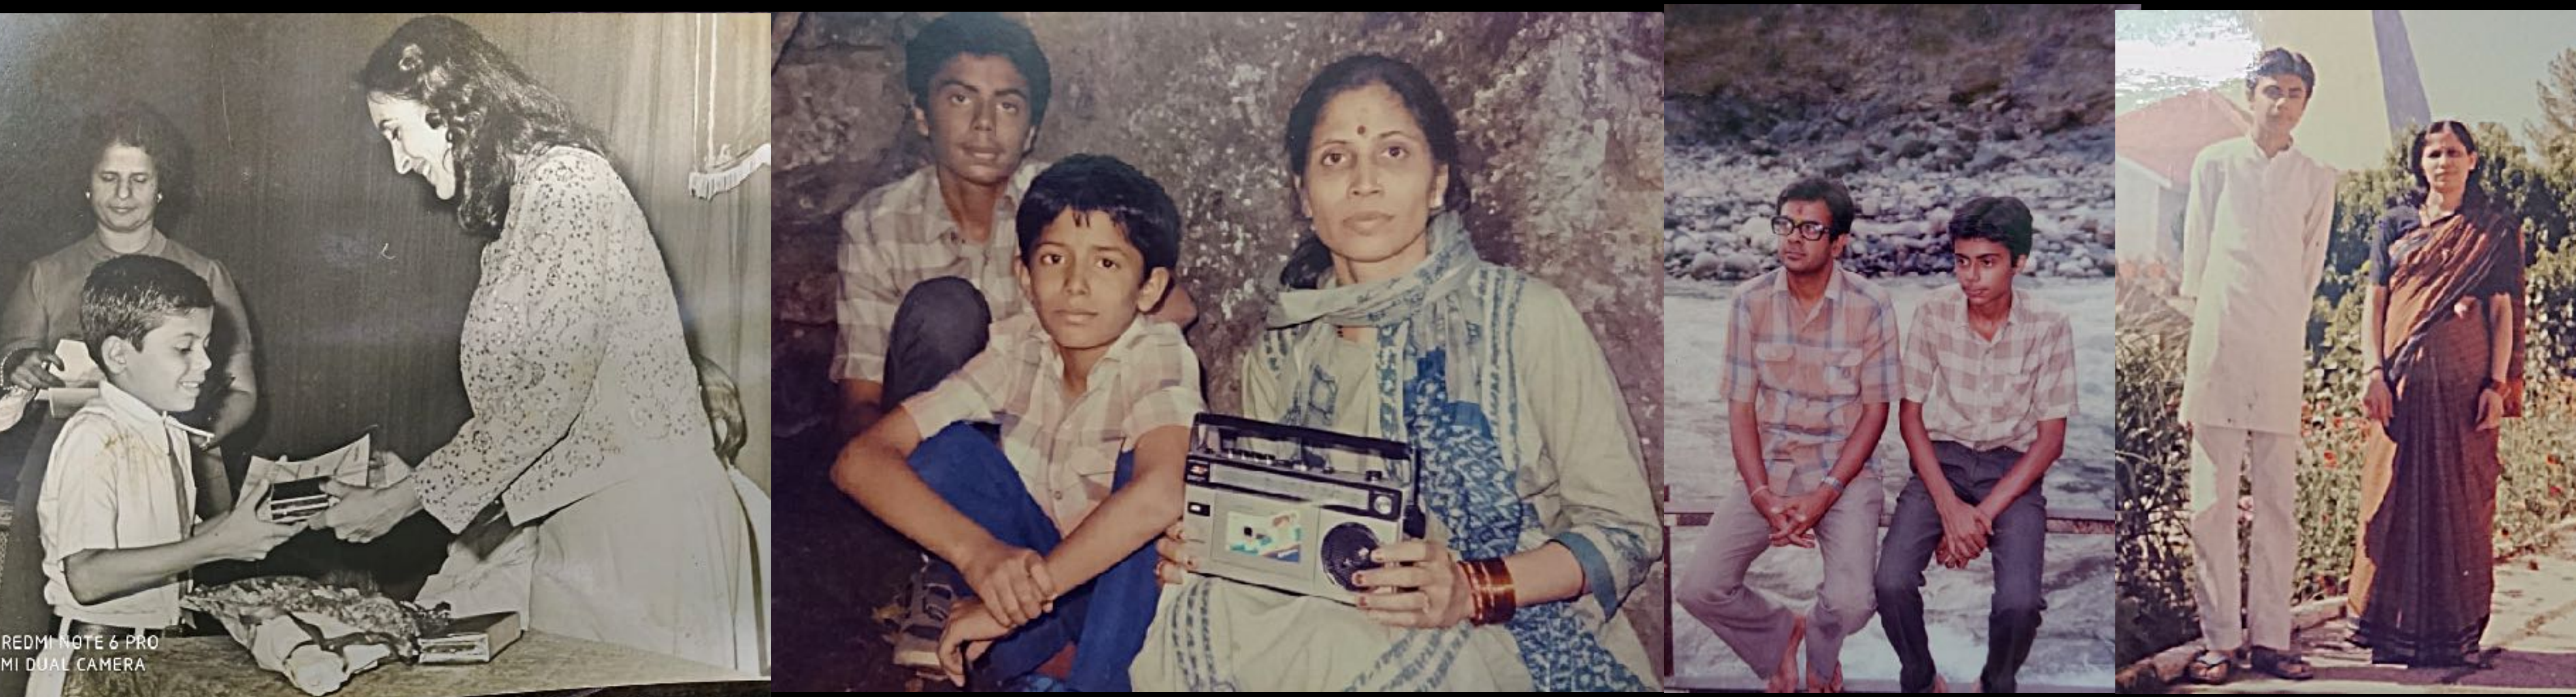

Why? Because it will all be left behind. After death, it is of no consequence whether you earned millions while living, whether you had millions of fans, whether you had a big loving family, whether you lived lavishly, whether you materially enjoyed your life to its fullest, etc.

The Yamadutas will still take you after death and torture your soul in hell if you did not sufficiently think of God daily.

You may say that I am just trying to scare you. But just imagine if even 1% of what I am saying is true! You should never be scared to face the truth when you still can. Do you really want to take that chance, especially when you can't do anything to avoid such agony after you die. And when you still have a chance right now from today to think of God's most merciful spiritual realm of Ekachakra for at least 3-6 hours daily, and thus avoid all this extreme torment after death forever. I am not getting any money from you for saying this. This is free advice. I just kindly want your soul's suffering to end by entering into God's eternal and blissful kingdom after death.
